

Tuesday 18th May 2010, 9.30am to 4pm
Gilbert Scott Lecture Theatre, Whitelands College,
Holybourne Avenue, Roehampton, London, SW15 4JD

With the Youth Charter and the Muhammad Ali Institute, Roehampton University is delighted to host a one day summit which will bring together young people, strategic sports leaders, academics and local consumers of sport and physical activity for a day of debate, discussion and the development of new ideas.

The Olympic movement recognises the value of sport as a tool for social development and there is much good work in the UK and across the world. Yet messages about legacy often seem confused and misunderstood.

What should 'legacy' look like with regards education, health, social & civic order and the environment?
What legacy do we want to experience locally, nationally and globally?

The summit will recognise the progress being made to date across all 5 continents and embrace the role that future global citizens can play in realising a vision.

The summit will be introduced and facilitated by Geoff Thompson MBE and staff from Roehampton University, the Youth Charter, and The Muhammad Ali Institute, Louisville.

Young people will share ideas with sports leaders, community partners, and academics and we will together produce a summit declaration that will provide a clear and strong contribution to the legacy potential that London 2012 and other major games can have on social and human development of young people and communities globally.

The event is free to attend and we expect demand to be high, so please book early to avoid disappointment.

Book your place online: <http://www.roehampton.ac.uk/sport-roehampton/olympiclegacybooking.asp>

For further information, please contact Ian Pickup, Director of Sport & Wellbeing at Roehampton: i.pickup@roehampton.ac.uk

